

A Study on the Innovative Mode of Student Party Construction

Wang Yaqiong

Abstract— It is of great and far-reaching significance to do a good job in the Party construction of college students to train them to be qualified successors and builders in building a socialist country with the Chinese characteristics so as to ensure the historical mission of our Party to realize the great rejuvenation of the Chinese nation. This paper aims to study the innovative mode of student Party building in college.

Index Terms—The development of Party members ; College students; Innovative mode

INTRODUCTION

The development of student Party members in College mainly includes three aspects. The first is the training, the education and the investigation of the Party activists, which is the basis of the development of Party members. The second is the reception of probationary Party member, which is the result of the first procedure. The third is the education, the investigation and the process of becoming a full member for the probationary member, which is an important measure to ensure the quality of developing Party members. It should be said that all three links play important roles in ensuring the quality of Party members. To grasp the process of the development of student Party members in College, we must make efforts to follow rigorous procedures.

For freshmen, we should grasp basic education and enlighten the consciousness of freshmen to join the Communist Party. The policy of “sowing early, choosing the seedling early and developing early” is of great significance. We should seize the favorable opportunity of entrance education and military training of new students and do a good job in the enlightenment education for freshmen to join the Communist Party. For example, we can invite experienced Party workers and experts to explain in detail the basic theory of the Party, the Party’s principles and policies, Party member’s behavior standard and the development procedure. In this way, the perceptions of the Communist Party are increasingly deepened for freshmen. We can also guide them to move closer to the Party organization. Moreover, we can help the freshmen establish correct ideals and faith and stimulate the enthusiasm of young students to join the Party organization.

For activists , we should pay attention to the improvement of the education and strengthen their faith in joining the Party. We should continue to strengthen the study of the theory of the Party, taking the school level Party school and the branch Party school as the main position, using theme reports, lecture forums, knowledge competitions and other carriers to carry out education in the Party’s history, basic theories, principles and policies. At the same time, the training and the education of the Party activists should adhere to the combination of theoretical study and social practice. We can build a platform to play their vanguard role. Party members should be organized to participate in social practice activities, such as the campus service and pioneer post of Party members, so that the activists can be educated and exercised in the social services. In addition to organizational participation, we can also promote the construction of grass-roots service-oriented Party organizations. For example, we can carry out social practice activities such as activists contacting students and apartments, so as to guide activists to explore ways to serve other students, the classes and the society.

For developing objects, we should practice the strict pre-qualification system. We should establish a pre-trial group for the development of student Party members to strictly examine whether the development objects meet the conditions for joining the Party and the requirements of relevant regulations in accordance with the guidelines and policies for the development of Party members. No development without political review. No development with less than one year of training and investigation period. No development without Party school training and failing in training examination. No development without the disagreement by the majority of Party members and the masses. No development without the League members’ recommendation.

For probationary members, we should cultivate their sense of membership through theoretical learning with various forms and rich contents. For example, we can adopt the way of the combination of centralized learning and self-study, the specialized study of the ideological and political theory course and the Party School study, the literature study and the discussion on the current affairs. In this way, we can cultivate the preparatory Party members’ faith in the Party and sense of the responsibility for the cause of the Party. It can also strengthen their Party spirit and political quality and guide them to make strict demand on themselves according to the standards of Party members. In addition, we can allocate appropriate social work and mass work to the preparatory Party members to enable them to experience the inner-Party life in practice. It is useful for them to accept the training of inner-Party life, and to establish the thought of serving the people wholeheartedly in their work. According to the standards of college student Party members, we should strengthen supervision and establish an investigation mechanism. Before the Party organization normalizes the probationary Party members who have completed their term of preparation, it is necessary to have a comprehensive understanding and evaluation of its performance in the preparatory period, so as to judge whether it meets the conditions of Party membership.

For full Party members, we should combine the standards of Party members with the requirements of modern society for college students to work out the conditions, standards and codes of conduct for college student Party members as well as the corresponding supervision, evaluation and reward measures and publicize them to the public. We can conduct the satisfaction evaluation among the masses on a regular basis to create an appropriate stress mechanism to make Party members play a leading role in all aspects, and turn into a self-discipline line gradually.

Nowadays, the concept of the Party building in college should be changed. Youth flourish, nation prospers; youth strong, nation strong. The student Party construction is an important part of our Party building. To educate and develop Party members among college students is an important and effective way to ensure the quality of new Party members, the purity of the Party's fresh blood and the expansion of the Party's new strength. The new requirements of the new era have pointed out the new direction of our efforts, and also made us aware of the heavier mission and responsibility on our shoulders. We should thoroughly study and implement the spirit of the important speech of General Secretary Xi and the requirements of the national education conference, comprehensively strengthen and improve the work of Party building in college, and promote the reform and development of our university to a new level in the new era.

REFERENCES

- [1] Guo Hucheng. Research on the work model of grass-roots party building in innovative colleges and universities [J]. Talent and wisdom-innovation education, 2018 (7).
- [2] Miao Junfeng. Talking about the importance of grassroots party building work [J]. Corporate Culture Bulletin, 2015 (9).
- [3] Sun Hou and others. The creation and practice of grassroots party organization activities in universities [J]. School Party Building and Ideological Education, 2010, (2): 24-25.
- [4] Wang Hongzhi, Lu Yuling. Research on Party Construction and Talent Cultivation in Colleges and Universities [J]. Journal of Liaoning Transportation College, 2014, 16 (2): 54-56.
- [5] Wang Ruipu. Innovative Practice of the Party's Grassroots Organization Construction in the New Period (Volume 4) [M]. Beijing: China Personnel Press, 2000: 3174.
- [6] Zhang Liying. An exploration of innovative ways of party building work [J]. Contemporary Miners, 2011, (12).